

Kendarium

Kendarium is a very rare alloy created at the Schools of Kendar in the distant past. It is silvery in color and very flexible. But, the primary trait it has is extreme strength. This metal was very difficult to work, and only the most valued possessions were created with it. A thin strand of this metal (as one might use in a necklace) can resist damage equivalent to 44 points. Of course, any blow not dealing that amount of damage does not even tarnish the surface of an object made from Kendarium. The fabled smiths who could work with Kendarium were in great demand and were never permitted to leave the Schools of Kendar. The smiths have long since passed into the ages of legends along with the Schools where they worked.